

SAIL will participate in the New England Venture Summit in Boston on December 8

SAIL Venture Partners (Costa Mesa, CA – New York, NY) announced today that Tom Cain, a SAIL Managing Partner, will be a speaker at the New England Venture Summit in Boston on December 8, 2009

(<http://www.youngstartup.com/newengland09>). His topic will be cleantech investment strategy. Other speakers include: Michael Balmuth, General Partner, Edison Venture Fund; and Issam Dairanieh, Technology Principal, BP Alternative Energy Ventures. The New England Venture Summit is one of the premier industry gathering events connecting senior executives of early stage and emerging growth companies, venture capitalists, angel investors, technology transfer professionals, university researchers, incubators, successful entrepreneurs and premier service providers. More than 25 leading VC's will speak at the Summit.

SAIL Venture Partners LLC (www.sailvc.com) is a cleantech investment firm with unique global insight into technologies, markets and opportunities. Drawing on decades of experience in cleantech and in growing successful businesses, the SAIL team invests in emerging cleantech companies with proven technologies, visionary leadership and demonstrated revenue and profit growth potential. SAIL has invested in a number of today's leading global cleantech companies, including: The Cleantech Group, Xtreme Power, Ice Energy, Enerpulse, Dow Kokam, Kokam Advanced Batteries, SNTech Motors, Activeion, and WaterHealth International.